DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain...

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

Now that Trump is president many people have argued and protested about certain subjects. Yet people are too busy over the fact that Hillary did not get elected instead of focusing on the things that Trump can do to change this country. They just do not pay attention to the big things and fuss and fight over the smallest things. Like abortion, when Trump says abortion it does not mean that millions of people are being taken out of this country it means that he wants the people that came in illegally to register as a true citizen and go through all the tests that it takes to get into the U.S. The question about if our country will split because of Trumps presidency, I think No. I feel that people are just trying to get attention and once they realized they aren't getting much of it, they will stop and realize what Trump is doing to save this country.
